

Moscow Girl Avoids Nationalization By Negotiating Wedding

GENEVA, June 7.—Pavel, the son of the late Russian emperor, has been nationalized by the Soviet government. The nationalization committee called on her at her home in Moscow and informed her that she had been chosen as the wife of one of the leaders in Premier Stalin's cabinet. Either she must submit to be nationalized, the Bolsheviks said, or she must leave the country.

According to Miss Zolotareva's story, which was corroborated by her husband, the Bolshevik secretary of the nationalization committee called on her at her home in Moscow and informed her that she had been chosen as the wife of one of the leaders in Premier Stalin's cabinet. Either she must submit to be nationalized, the Bolsheviks said, or she must leave the country.

Miss Zolotareva, who was a young school mistress, declined the offer. She was surrounded by a mob of Bolsheviks. Two sacks of wheat were thrown at her in an attempt to force her to accept the offer. She fled to the Soviet embassy in Geneva, where she was given refuge.

Weiss and his wife have not met since after the ceremony and a stranger transporting Swiss refugees from Russia arrived at Mrs. Zolotareva's home. She said she had been divorced. The suit was not defended and she obtained a decree.
